Educational Offerings

Description	The TSO's Educational concerts address a vital part of our mission: to educate Tallahassee's young people by introducing them to the symphony orchestra. TSO Educational Concerts for elementary-aged children are designed to ensure the experience is as meaningful as possible to those in attendance. For each YPC the TSO designs educational materials that are aligned with the Florida Sunshine State Standards, so that teachers may use the experience to teach concepts required of them. This year's two Young People's Concerts, scheduled for December 12-13, 2013, are holiday-themed. Another education program of the TSO is tied to our partnership with the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at FSU. Since 2010, the TSO has been offering music classes to these mature learners, and often teaches about the music being performed in concert. Program success is monitored by the TSO through surveys and teacher feedback.

Community Engagement

Description	The TSO offers open rehearsals FREE of charge for most Subscription concerts. These dress rehearsals are attended by parents with young children, community members unable to afford tickets to the concert, elderly who can no longer drive to an evening performance, and TSO fans who enjoy observing the rehearsal process. The open rehearsals typically draw 200-300 people. The TSO hosts a “Lunch with the Conductor.” This series of lunch gatherings allows community members to hear the Maestro speak about upcoming performances. Before each concert, the TSO hosts a “Happy Hour” so concert goers may gather before the concert to socialize, enjoy a drink, and listen to a local band of non-TSO musicians. The “TSO Pre-Concert Lecture” is an informative, pre-concert talk which is free to concert goers, and provides insight into the music and artists performing that day. During our Subscription concerts, the TSO has continued utilizing “Clef Notes” and conducting “Intermission Interviews” to help concert goers connect more deeply to the music they hear.

Mission & Area Served

Statements

Mission Statement

The Mission of the Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra is to maintain and further develop a resident, professional symphony orchestra, to produce musical performances of the highest artistic quality, and to provide cultural and educational opportunities in the Tallahassee, North Florida and South Georgia communities.

Background Statement

The Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra evolved from a 1979 performance of Handel's Messiah, presented by Maestro Nicholas Harsanyi and area professionals. According to notes in the 1990-1991 program book, "enthusiasm for a resident orchestra grew at the same time that the new Civic Center was nearing completion. It was decided that the grand celebration to open the Tallahassee/Leon County Civic Center should include a symphony performance – by Tallahassee's own orchestra. With volunteers handling promotion, ticket sales, and fundraising, Maestro Harsanyi conducted the premiere performance on September 14, 1981."

After the death of Maestro Harsanyi in 1987, the TSO was led by a series of guest conductors under the supervision of Phillip Spurgeon, Artistic Advisor. After one season under David S. Z. Pollitt, David Hoose took over the baton in 1993 and led the Orchestra to new artistic heights. Maestro Hoose's resignation after eleven years led us into an exciting conductor search during the 2005-2006 season, culminating in the appointment of Miriam Burns as the new Music Director in June 2006.

Following Maestra Burns's resignation in 2011, the TSO began a two-year long search for the organization's next artistic leader. After winnowing an applicant pool of over 250 to 5 finalists, the TSO proudly announced Maestro Darko Butorac as our new Music Director/Conductor in May, 2013.

Impact Statement

The Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra (TSO) offers a diverse and engaging season of live orchestral music, including our classically-oriented Subscription Series, an outdoor "Pops in the Park" event, and a concert designed especially for elementary-aged school children, our "Young People's Concert." In addition to first-rate performances, the TSO provides educational opportunities for people of all ages. In 2010-11, the TSO formed a partnership with the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at FSU and began offering classes to these mature learners that pertained to music being performed by the TSO.

As we celebrate our 33rd season in 2013-14, we are excited to announce the appointment of Darko Butorac as our new Music Director/Conductor. The search for the next artistic leader of the TSO began in 2012, when nearly 250 conductors from all over the world applied for the position. From the months May-December of 2011, a search committee comprised of musicians, board members, and TSO supporters narrowed the pool to 5 finalists. After spending a week in Tallahassee conducting the orchestra and meeting our community, Maestro Butorac was chosen as the overwhelming favorite by musicians, audience members, board, and community. One of our primary goals for the season is to promote Darko's tenure and to introduce him to the community as he settles into the position.

A second goal for the TSO during the current season is to develop a business plan that will sustain a small series of family concerts. A third goal of the TSO during the current season is to hone our recently adopted "Patron Growth Initiative," which seeks to engage and cultivate our loyal patron base more fully.

Needs Statement

TSO donors help fulfill our mission of serving the public. When you make a gift to the TSO, you can be assured that it will be spent wisely and put to use for the good of our community. Each season, the TSO depends on your generous gifts to support almost half of its operating budget.

Opportunities include:

- Season Subscriptions– Season ticket holders are the single most important source of monetary support for our organization.
- Annual Fund– Most annual fund donations are received from season ticket holders, given at the same time as the season ticket purchase over the spring and summer.
- Corporate Concert Sponsorships- This includes sponsorship of Masterworks, Pops, Holiday Magic, and the Young Peoples' Concert, as well as membership in our "Business Leadership Circle," which is designed for businesses who wish to donate at a modest level.
- Concert Program Book Ad Sales- While businesses receive an advertising benefit from buying program ads, this revenue exceeds the cost of printing the programs and therefore helps underwrite TSO operating expenses.
- Tallahassee Symphony Society (TSS) – The Tallahassee Symphony Society, the TSO's sister fundraising arm/volunteer corps, is an integral and indispensable component of the TSO.

CEO/Executive Director Statement

The TSO's future is top-of-mind for those of us who help guide the organization, and is always placed in the context of a national conversation about the future of American orchestras. Fortunately the TSO is on very solid financial footing because we're right-sized for this community and are free from the fixed cost burdens of larger-budget orchestras. Interestingly, the TSO finds itself in the position of knowing that we are not immune to the problems many other orchestras face—we recognize that change and evolution are necessary for our survival—while simultaneously enjoying a strong balance sheet and broad community support.

The TSO advocates creating experiences for our audiences that are both addictive (people don't want to live without them).

Looking around the country, we see orchestras working to meet the changing desires of audience members. For instance, the San Francisco Symphony is the latest orchestra to offer "tweet seats" where patrons are allowed/encouraged to send out comments during the concert; the Stanford (CA) University Orchestra created an audience participation concert of music for iPhones and iPads; the trend of showing photos or other visuals during concerts has become commonplace among orchestras tackling the multi-sensory issue (just consider the TSO's photochoreography piece on this season's October concert); and when the Detroit Symphony re-envisioned its post-strike programming model in 2011, it created the "Neighborhood Concert Series" in response to the "distribution" With all this in mind, the leadership of the TSO is putting our heads together to contemplate what, indeed, future concerts and events of the Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra might look like.

Board Chair Statement

Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra is the only professional symphony orchestra in Florida's capital. The TSO is engaged in a drive to re-imagine what the role of a symphony orchestra is in our rapidly changing community. While retaining our masterworks series, which regularly sells-out, we are adding offering concerts designed for families for entertainment in outdoor settings and programs designed to engage young families and young professionals. The major challenge for orchestras is that ticket sales only cover about 1/2 of the cost of providing a masterworks concert. Government support for the art form is declining, and we have to replace this support from private sources, including endowment.

CEO Comments

The Board of Directors, currently 33 members strong, represents the many faces of the Tallahassee community, including retirees, attorneys, a school principal, college professors, private business owners, state employees, a Priest, and a Rabbi. Each year the TSO's Governance Committee looks carefully at what needs the organization has, then actively seeks members to help fulfill certain roles on the board. Board members are carefully vetted and undergo an extensive orientation so that they understand the expectations and requirements for membership.

Board members are required to support the TSO through season subscriptions and individual donations, a one-time endowment gift, committee participation, and volunteer service at TSO and TSS events. Board members help develop policies, contracts, promotions, special events, long-range plans, and are important liaisons with the community. The Board and Executive committee each meet regularly, while committees meet as often as necessary during the season.
